CryoStack: Applications and Execution Access

Connector / Relay is connectivity, not an execution backend. It is used for Remote access and, when required, for Cloud access to a private institutional service — ordinary Cloud execution does not require it.